Their bodies it is asserted, were then dressed for a cannibal feast.

PECULIAR POISONS.

GENERATED IN THE HUMAN BODY.

Every living thing, plant or animal, contains within itself the germs of certain decay and death. In the human body these germs of disease and death (called by scientists poisons), are usually the result of imperfect digestion of food: the result of indigestion or dyspepsia. The stomach, from abuse, weakness, does not promptly and thoroughly digest the food. The result is a heavy, sodden mass which ferments (the first process of decay) poisoning the blood, making it thin, weak, and lacking in red corpuscles; poisoning the brain causing headaches and pain in the eyes.

BENEFIT MUSICAL.

There will be a musical at Broadway on Tuesday night, November 29, for the benefit of the school library. JURY DISAGREED.

The Damage Suit Against the News Will Have to be Tried Over.

Federal court adjourned Saturday night, and Judge Barr and the court officers who remained returned to Louisville.

The damage suit of E. M. Brown, of Milan, Tenn., against the News Publishing Company, for $50,000, was given to the jury about 10:30 o'clock, and the jury failed to agree. It stood seven to five in favor of Mr. Robertson, of the News. The greatest amount of damages proposed was $50,000.

This is considered very favorable for the News. The case will now move to be tried again at the April term of court.

The suit of Fred Stewart, against the Illinois Central railroad, for $107,000 damages for the loss of both legs, which were cut off in the yards by the switch engine, was remanded back to the McCracken circuit court for trial.

A popular attorney to the damage suit was Mr. Ed Smith, of Milan, who did excellent work for the defense, and is a most talented young man. He made many friends here during his stay.

GOOD GOODS, WELL ADVERTISED.

Going the rounds of the press is an item stating that the Royal Baking Powder Company is the largest advertiser in America. Of course, the business itself must be an enormous one to justify so great an expenditure in publicity. There is no fallacy more dangerous than that success can be gained by advertising an article with indifferent merit. But, given an article of the highest quality like Royal Baking Powder, which when the housekeeper has once used she finds if she desires the best food she cannot do without, then the greatest measure of success is attained by keeping it continually before the public. Great merit and good advertising are both essential to make a product a great success. The Royal Baking Powder Company, which the first proprietors have wisely used throughout the land, The Royal company believe that there is no medium for advertising like the newspapers, since in these enlightened days everybody reads them.

COUNCIL MEETING.

The Called Session. Tonight May Be Lively—Mayor's Address: Soon Due.

The Mayor Has Been at Work on It For Several Days.

Drug Ordinance.

The called meeting of the council tonight will doubtless be quite lively, as the drug ordinance will come up for second passage. It is practically certain that it will be passed. It will then devolve upon the mayor to approve or veto it. If he vetoes it, he will have to give the people a better reason than any of the arguments yet urged against the ordinance, to satisfy them.

The mayor has been at work on his annual address, which is to be delivered at the next regular meeting, a week from today. It is supposed that the policy of the administration will be fully outlined by the chief executive in his proclamation.

SOMETHING BLEW UP.

It Was All a Great Joke on the Hamburger Steak Man.

Last night early there was an explosion at Fourth and Broadway. It emanated from the subterranean depths of the hamburger steak foundry on the corner. There were four or five boys inside at the time of the explosion, but immediately afterwards there wasn't one within ten feet. They all thought Gabriel was outside calling them, and some went out the windows and doors, while others found an easy egress through the roof. When the thing, whatever it was, went off, and the frightened boys did likewise, there was no one in sight. In about three minutes there were about 100 people and two cops.

One of the occupants of the wagon was "Trilly." When Trilly struck terra firma, his feet were straight as his hair, and his hair was pretty straight. He was bleeding, and straightway began to show his companions where the bomb went through the wagon. The police had to arrest somebody, so they nabbed a newspaper reporter, and accused him of being an anarchist, and attempting to blow up the hamburger steak concern. He had to prove an alibi before he could go.

Panemonium ceased on the corner in a short time, and it was subsequently learned that someone had placed two cannon-crackers under the wagon, and the racket was occasioned by the explosion.

For fresh oysters in bulk or can go to Calisto's.

How He Cheered the Spirits of a Sick Elephant by Conversing with It.

The following anecdote comes from the lips of an American traveler who spent some time in the company of Rudyard Kipling in London lately.

The afternoon was spent together in the Zoo, and while strolling along our ears were assailed by the most unpolite sound I have ever heard, unaccompanied, fretting, lamenting sound proceeding from the elephant's house. "What's the matter in there?" asked Mr. Kipling of the keeper.

"A sick elephant, sir," he cried to him, "the time we don't know what to do with him," was the answer.

Mr. Kipling hurried away from me in the direction of the lagoon, which was growing louder and more painful. I followed and saw him go on close to the cage, where stood an elephant with sadly drooped ears and trunk. He was crying actual tears at the same time that he mourned his lot most pathetically. At another moment Mr. Kipling was right up to the bars, and I heard him speak to the sick beast in a language that may have been elephantine, but certainly was not English. Instantly the whining stopped, the ears were lifted, the monster turned his sleepy little suffering eyes upon his visitor and said to him, "Enjoying poor health?" Like to confound their symptoms to sympathizing listeners as much as to some human invalids. Certain it was that Mr. Kipling, and that elephant carried on a conversation, with the result that the elephant found his spirits much cheered and improved. The white went out of his voice, he forgot that he was much to be pitied, he began to exchange experiences with his friend, and he was quite unconcerned as was Mr. Kipling, of the amused and interested crowd collecting about the cage. At last, with a start, Mr. Kipling found himself and his elephant the object of all observers and beat a hasty retreat, leaving behind him a very different creature from the one he had found.

"Doesn't that beat anything you ever saw?" ejaculated a compatriot of mine, as the elephant went and a land and
